

‘What joy! The sewing machine has arrived!’

A SEWING machine, sponsored as a joint project between Stapleford Mothers' Union and the Link committee has arrived in Nachingwea.

It will be looked after by the St Andrew's Nachingwea Mothers' Union branch and loaned out to those who wish to make wedding dresses, school uniforms or to complete their own projects. The ladies are delighted.

Thank you to all who contributed.

News from the Chair

WE have received the following message from Kevin, the chair of the Link committee in Nachingwea:

Thank you for the uniforms!

I am writing about the project for making and giving school uniforms to 20 children with special needs who are learning at Nachingwea primary school. It includes 11 boys and 9 girls. These school uniforms motivate parents who have those children to bring them to school.

- Giving uniforms shows them love which gives them comfort and feeling that they are cared for.
- Giving uniforms shows parents, and other children around them, that children with special needs deserve good things.
- It motivates parents to bring these children to school and not hide them inside as has been done in the past.
- It gives children a good learning environment.'

The Coronation as seen in Nachingwea

Today I spent long time without tired watching the coronation of King Charles event. It was fantastic to see how the event was arranged. I was surprised with every step. I have a best story to tell my future children and grandchildren. It is one of the unique events. It was amazing, I wish I could be there and saying with others GOD SAVE THE KING.

And finally

After one year of being chair of the Link in Nachingwea, Kevin adds:

I am happy for support and cooperation I always receive not only from my fellow link members here at Nachingwea but also the whole community and leadership from St Andrew Anglican Church, Nachingwea. I thank them all. I also enjoy your support and cooperation from Stapleford. I am full of energy to carry on. Being the link between these two churches and communities as the chairperson gives me another reason to live. Not only to live but to live happily.

Bishop James Almasi comes to Nachingwea

AT the beginning of May, Bishop James led a service in St Andrew's, Nachingwea.
