

A message from the Chair of the Nachingwea Link

Kevin Bushiri, Chair of the Nachingwea Link Committee has sent us this New Year's message and report.

2023 was a special year for us as leaders and for the Nachingwea community. Both sides, we and you, all played our parts well and accomplished our social projects successfully.

These projects all needed financial, advice and physical support. You, Stapleford Link, did well in the first two, Women's Health Project and the English course and we did well in the Special Needs project. So we are all together the best winning team ever.

All in all these accomplishments give us the green light for the coming year 2024. We here at Nachingwea are ready to participate in next year's projects as you are. Together we bring joyful smiles on the Nachingwea community.

Thanks for your support in accomplishing our special day, we mean our wedding day. It has been the best year for us. We have our own rings on our own fingers. It was not easy but with you the ways were clear. (The Stapleford Link Committee is delighted to see that Safinia is wearing a dress made from donated silk sent by the Link and sewn by some of the ladies trained on the VETA course sponsored by the Stapleford Link).

Masasi Diocese Youths' Conference

The biggest assembly of youths from Anglican churches in Masasi diocese has taken place here at St Andrew's Church on 14 and 15 December 2023. This conference happens every year. However it will take many years to happen again here in Nachingwea because it goes to other churches in our Masasi diocese.

More than 700 youths came together happily to do different activities like donating blood, singing gospel songs, getting financial knowledge from CRDB Bank, showing talents and receiving God's message from different preachers.

The guest of honour was our beloved bishop James Almasi who gave his important message on working hard not only for national or personal development but also in spreading the word of God. The Bishop saw choirs and led all of us in donating blood. The singing and gospel messages continued the whole night until Saturday morning, when the young people started their journey to their home churches.

Link committee members participated fully, both financially and physically.

We wish you all a happy new year 2024. We greatly appreciate your love to our family and all Nachingwea community.

Our Almighty God bless you all.
Amen.
